Voices at Work
Women, Performance, and Labor in Ancient Greece
Andromache Karanika

"Voices at Work is ambitious and original in its subject matter and scope and will complement the steady stream of scholarship on gender, women’s performances, and female speech in ancient Greece." —Laura Kathleen McClure, University of Wisconsin

2014 320 pp., 6 b&w photos 978-1-4214-1255-9 $59.95 hc  Also available as an e-book

Reconstructing Ancient Linen Body Armor
Unraveling the Linothorax Mystery
Gregory S. Aldrete, Scott Bartell, and Alicia Aldrete

“Essential for anyone interested in ancient warfare and/or experimental archaeology, from academic to layman, and is a defining and valuable contribution to our understanding of the ancient world.” —Bryn Mawr Classical Review

2013 304 pp. 21 b&w illus., 16 line drawings, 8 color plates 978-1-4214-0819-4 $29.95 hc

Homer, the Poetics of Consent
Collective Decision Making and the Iliad
David F. Elmer

"Elmer achieves what is harder and harder to do—he makes totally new points about our oldest Greek compositions, as he convincingly tracks the theme of consent throughout the Iliad and demonstrates how it structures the entire poem. This is one of the most important books on Homer in decades." —Richard Martin, Stanford University

2012 336 pp. 978-1-4214-0826-2 $55.00 hc

Reading Herodotus
A Guided Tour through the Wild Boars, Dancing Suitors, and Crazy Tyrants of The History
Debra Hamel

“A book about Pythagorean women is sorely needed and long overdue. Pomeroy rectifies that situation and could fill large gaps not only in the social history of Pythagoreanism but more generally in the history of the lives of these women, including their intellectual lives.” —Pamela Gordon, University of Kansas

2013 200 pp., 9 halftones, 3 line drawings 978-1-4214-0956-6 $49.95 hc

Pythagorean Women
Their History and Writings
Sarah B. Pomeroy

Homeric Speech and the Origins of Rhetoric
Rachel Ahern Knudsen

Knudsen believes that the academic distinction between poetry and rhetoric should be challenged. Based on a close analysis of persuasive speeches in the Iliad, Knudsen argues that Homeric poetry displays a systematic and technical concept of rhetoric and that many Iliadic speakers in fact employ the rhetorical techniques put forward by Aristotle.

Reading Herodotus
Debra Hamel

“Hamel presents Herodotus and his material in an original, illuminating, and entertaining way. By leading the reader through Herodotus’s text from beginning to end, the book provides an accessible introduction both to Herodotus and to an exciting period of Greek history, which culminates in the Persian Wars.” —Timothy E. Duff, University of Reading

Financing the Athenian Fleet
Public Taxation and Social Relations
Vincent Gabrielsen

“All will appreciate the significance of Gabrielsen’s book, for he has demonstrated, more clearly than his predecessors in the study of the trierarchy, the delicate balance between the state and the ‘private sector’ in this supreme military installation.”—American Historical Review

2010 328 pp. 978-0-8018-9815-0 $35.00 pb Also available as an e-book

Plato’s Political Philosophy
Mark Blitz

“Blitz’s book . . . clearly contains the fruits of many years of thoughtful reflection on Plato’s philosophy, and there is much that a discerning reader might learn from it.”—International Journal of the Classical Tradition

The Annals of Quintus Ennius and the Italic Tradition
Jay Fisher

Fisher argues that Ennius does not simply translate Homeric models into Latin, but blends Greek poetic models with Italic diction to produce a poetic hybrid. His investigation uncovers a poem that blends foreign and familiar cultural elements in order to generate layers of meaning for his Roman audience.

Maternal Megalomania
Julia Domna and the Imperial Politics of Motherhood
Julie Langford

“Langford successfully uses an extremely important methodology to illuminate facts about not only what happened but also how events and policies were advertised to the subjects of the Empire. She does an excellent job of presenting Julia Domna as a case study of how this communication worked during a tumultuous time—just as the new Severan dynasty was being founded.”
—Brian K. Harvey, Kent State University

The Empire of the Self Self-Command and Political Speech in Seneca and Petronius
Christopher Star

“This [review] can hardly do justice to the scope and richness of Star’s argument in each chapter, to the thoroughness with which he discusses his chosen texts, and to the creativity with which he exploits his simultaneous treatments of Seneca and Petronius. This book makes a major contribution to the modern bibliography of selfhood and self-formation in the early empire, and it will doubtless generate further debate in so vibrant an area of study.”  —Classical Journal

2012 312 pp. 978-1-4214-0674-9 $65.00 hc  Also available as an e-book
Chariot Racing in the Roman Empire
Fik Meijer
translated by Liz Waters

Following close on the heels of his successful book on gladiators, Meijer reveals all there is to know about chariot racing in the Roman Empire. From the length of the track and the need to ride small horses, to the risks, techniques, and training methods involved in racing, Meijer recreates ancient Rome’s favorite pastime in impressive detail.
